No
- Please provide your answer.
There is a deep power imbalance between landlords and their tenants that runs deeper than how informed tenants are of their rights. Renoviction is a large component of evictions that occur and deserves specific action to be taken by implementing a by-law.

Landlords renovict because it is profitable for them to do so. Landlords, including local landlords have been selling courses on renoviction tactics. The city providing additional support to landlords means putting more tenants at risk.
- I acknowledge and understand the guidelines for being a delegation
Yes
